

Stretch of a bit

Published: Mar 08, 2009

A gadget that claims to lengthen penises by up to a third has been backed by doctors.

The extender — called Andro- Penis — uses a plastic ring, two rods and a silicon band, according to The Sun.

Sixteen men with an average age of 47 wore the device for up to six hours a day for six months.

Most of them had their private parts boosted by 32%.

Now more trials will take place in Turin, Italy.

Study leader Dr Paolo Gontero said: “The extender device produces an effective and durable lengthening of the penis, both in the flaccid and stretched state.”
